Therapists as Collaborative Team members for Infant/Toddler Community Services

May 8, 2001
Juliann Woods, Ph.D., CCC-SLP
Shubha Kashinath, M.S., CCC-SLP
Florida State University

9-11:45, “Getting into the routine:” Identifying and embedding intervention into routines with families.

Working within a family’s natural environment requires knowledge of the activities and events that occur. Strategies for assessment through observation of routines will be demonstrated. Selecting routines for intervention and determining when to embed opportunities will be discussed. Specific intervention strategies based on a triadic intervention model that capitalizes on families’ strengths/preferences will be illustrated.

Notes
1:2:15  Natural environments: Why is this so hard? Perspectives from personnel in other states

Providing services in natural environments is challenging because changing existing programs/practices is harder than establishing new ones. Innovative approaches to meet this challenge, developed by personnel from various states, will be discussed. Participants will also learn to identify and address challenges or barriers to natural environments in their own programs.

Notes